TUNE—“BANISH SORROW.”

COMPRADES! join the flag of glory,
Cheerly tread the deck of fame,
Earn a place in future story,
Seek and win a warrior's name.

Yankee Tars can laugh at dangers:

While the roaring mountain wave

Teems with carnage—they are strangers

To a deed that is not brave.

May our banner'd stars, as ever,

Splendidly o'er freemen burn,

Till the night of war is over,

Till the dawn of peace return.

Washington, July 27.

When YANIEWIEZ first came into London, he lived at the west end of the town. One day after paying several visits, he found himself a little out of his latitude, and called a hackney, when this dialogue ensued :

Coachman (shutting the door) where to, sir?

Yan. Home—man am I go you me home.

Coachman. Home, sir, where's that?

Yan. By gar, I no know—de name of the street has escapte, has escaped out of my memory: I have forgot him. Vat shall I do?

Coachman (grins.)

Yan. Ah! you are gay—come now—you understand de music—Eh!

Coachman. Music—what has that to do with the street?

Yan. Ah! vous verrez—you shall see—(num a tune)—Vat is dat?

Coachman. Mollbrook.

Yan. Ah! by gar—dat is him—Marlboro' street—now you drive me home—Eh!

This is a fact. We have often heard that “music hath charms” to do many clever things: but this is, I believe, the first time of its instructing a hackney coachman where to set

An old trick, which has been of long standing was last week played on Mr. P—, of Chichester. Having purchased, as he supposed, a four gallon cask of brandy, at 20s. per gallon, he was much surprised on drawing its contents, to find it very excellent water! and knocking in the head with revenge, discovered a canister which contained half a pint of brandy, from which the sample was drawn with a spoon.

A witness, on a trial last week, in the court of common pleas, Dublin, where Lord Norbury presides, being asked, in his cross examination, whether such an-one was an honest man, made the following answer—“He is indeed as honest a man as I see in this court, (begging lord Norbury's pardon.)” As soon as the laughter was a little subsided, lord Norbury observed to the counsel, “I see this man is not only a dealer in rock salt, (for such he was) but also in attice salt.”

BELLINGHAM.

Such is the public avidity to possess some relique of Bellingham, that it is an absolute fact, which we had from a medical gentleman who was at the dissection of the body, that 10 guineas were offered for one of his fingers, 50 guineas for his right arm, and 200 guineas for his whole body!—It is likewise well known, that the buttons of his coat were sold at a considerable price. The eager and insatiable curiosity of John Bull, and his easy gullibility, furnish many whimsical anecdotes. When Margaret Nicholson attempted to stab the king, a sharp-witted fellow set up a sign-board, on which was painted, “To be seen within, the very Fork, which belonged to the knife with which Margaret Nicholson attempted to stab the king; admission only One Penny!!”

We have also heard of a public exhibition of “the very apron which was worn by the butcher who killed the fat-tail calf in the parable of the Prodigal Son.”—In short, nothing is too broad for John Bull.

Manufacture of Morocco Leather and Shoes, AT LYNN (MASSACHUSETTS.)

Permit me to inform you, that the town of Lynn, in Massachusetts, exceeds all places in the United States for the manufacture of shoes. In the course of the year 1811, nearly one million pair of women's shoes were made by the industrious inhabitants. They are formed of domestic sheep and foreign goat-skins, dressed in the Morocco fashion. The former are risen to great value in the shoe-making business. The pelt of a sheep, but a few years ago was not worth more than six to nine cents. They have since fetched forty and even fifty—and when finished for making the nearest shoes and slippers, is valued at two dollars and a quarter; a price as great, as the entire animal meat, wool and all, used formerly to bring.

The first English Morocco was brought into America in the year 1793, by Mr. Ebenezer Breed. It was then difficult to persuade the cordwainers in New-York and Philadelphia to work it up into shoes. At that time, florentines, satinets and silks were chiefly in vogue for ladies wear. But, at length, Morocco took a run, and became so fashionable that considerable quantities were imported from England to supply the home demand.

Domestic manufacturers of Morocco were begun about 1796 or 1797; and have progressed in such a manner, that there is no occasion whatever for the imported material.—Indeed the whole union is now supplied with Morocco shoes, entirely of domestic manufacture.

Progress of Manufactures in Connecticut.

About ten years since, a number of persons in this state commenced the manufacture of the common white metal or Wathever Buttons; the most or all of whom failed, although their buttons were sold for three dollars per gross. There are now no less than twelve factories within thirty miles of this town, in which about sixty or seventy persons are employed and in which were manufactured during the year past no less than eighty thousand gross of the same description of buttons; which are now sold at about 60 cents per gross, and at that price afford a fair profit.

This important manufacture must soon cease for want of wive, if the non-importation law continues in force.

MORE INDIAN MURDERS.

On Saturday last, two girls, the one 14 and the other 11 years old, the daughters of William Wilson, were murdered within half a mile of the block-house, at Greenville, where three companies are stationed under the command of maj. Lanier. The girls were out gathering grapes in company with their brother, a boy of about 17 years, not more than two hundred yards from Mr. Terry's stockade, where they were discovered by three lurking Delaware Indians. The Indians had two guns, both of which they discharged at them, but without effect. The girls were too much terrified to be able to make their escape; they both fell victims to the savage tomahawk. The boy had a shot gun with him, loaded with small pigeon shot: he was pursued by one of the Indians, armed with a tomahawk and scalping knife, as far as Mr. Terry's mill pond, which lay between them and the stockade; he there wheeled and presented at the Indian, who instantly retreated; this enabled the boy to swim the pond and reached the stockade in safety. The alarm was so soon given that the savages succeeded in scalping one of the girls, the eldest; they cut across the head of the other but did not get the scalp off.

[The substance of the above account was last night received by the Editors of L. Hall, in a letter from Mr. Westfall, post master at Troy.]

MR. POPE.

The few federalists who live in, and about Lexington and Georgetown, have lately received their senator into FULL COMMUNION—and expect by frequent repetitions of the ceremony of initiation, to give the public an high opinion of the value of their convert—they are mistaken—they, but throw out a Tub to catch a Whale, who suppose Kentuckians will ever support Mr. Pope, because federalists honour him with public dinners.

Some of our federal politicians think they will promote their cause, by giving Mr. Pope public dinners—Would they not have done it better, by providing him with a pair of spurs to expedite his journey to Washington?

Mr. Pope admitted at a dinner party in Fayette, that he was fond of public life—So was general Hull—We hope, both were not influenced by the same motives.

Why do all the federalists support Mr. Pope, asked one republican of another—"Birds of a feather, flock together," was the reply—and, says a third—it is well known, that federalists would not give him dinners, unless they could eat cheek by jowl together."

It is said that part of the toasts drank at Mr. Pope's Georgetown dinner, have been suppressed. Was that one, which named De Witt Clinton as our next president not published, because Mr. Pope did not wish to commit himself so far?

GENERAL HULL.

The friends of General Hull contend, that he made no bargain with Mr. Foster, the British minister for the delivery of Detroit, to Gen. Brock. Agreed: "Tis of no consequence to us, whether he made it at Washington, or in the Lakes with Foster's agent. But, if we are permitted to connect the actions of great men together, may we not ask, whether Mr. Pope supports the election of De Witt Clinton as president by reason of a bargain struck with him previous to, or since his departure from Washington?"

Many—nearly all of the heroes of the revolution are gone—their memories are engraven on our hearts, and the legacy of freedom rested from tyranny and oppression, purchased with their blood, is still held most dear.—In taking a view of our political situation, the mind intuitively wanders over the different states in the union—enquires the parts they performed during that sanguinary contest—the parts they have again to perform—who were the champions of liberty, and who presided in the gubernatorial chair!—Have we such meritorious characters now, as then adorned our country?—Notwithstanding the most unaccountable and determined opposition to the republican administration, by an unprincipled faction, leagued with tories and emissaries, the survey is pleasing. But in few states adverse principles prevail—and where executive influence has been exercised to damp our sacred cause, associations are formed for voluntary enrolment, that will meet the times.

The following address of the Governor of North-Carolina, will be read with interest and pleasure:

To my Fellow-Citizens,

And particularly the Young Men of N. Carolina.

Not long since the American Standard was planted on the shores of Canada. Our Army was composed of as brave men as ever graced the service of any power on earth. The patriotism, military skill and integrity of the commanding General were never questioned. Our enemy's country being thus invaded by an army composed of such brave men, headed by a General in whom it was believed were united all the qualifications necessary to constitute an able and intrepid commander, could not fail to inspire the Government and people of the United States with the utmost confidence that the advantages gained could and would be maintained against any opposing force that could be brought into action before the arrival of the re-enforcements destined for that army. This confidence was of short duration. It quickly gave way to doubts and apprehensions; which were scarcely entertained before they were confirmed. To the great surprise and astonishment of all, this brave and intrepid army, eager for battle, has been, by capitulation, surrendered by their General without firing a gun, to a force consisting mostly of miserable savages whose flight before artillery or the bayonet in open combat is as certain as they are used in repelling them. Whilst this strange, this inexplicable conduct of the General drew tears from his valiant soldiers, it inflicted a wound upon his country's fame. Shall that fame continue to be tarnished? The brave sons of the west answer in the negative. They are voluntarily repairing to their country's standard to retrieve its tarnished reputation. Their example followed, and the enemy will quickly, be taught that out of this reverse of fortune will, eventually, grow an army capable of bearing down all opposition and dictating its own terms within the walls of Quebec. Will you, patriotic sons of North-Carolina, hesitate to follow their noble example, to fly to your country's standard to share in achievements which will cover their authors, with immortal glory and renown? Can you behold the bleeding wounds of your country and not with eagerness fly to its defence? Can you with cold indifference contemplate the horrid massacres perpetrated on our frontiers by the deluded and merciless savages instigated by our less barbarous enemy? Can you repose when you reflect that you might be instrumental in rescuing thousands of defenceless women and children from the torture, from the tomahawk, and from the scalping-knife? No, assuredly not. To answer these questions in the affirmative would be to charge you with being unsusceptible of that patriotic ardour which animates and rouses your brave countrymen of the West—with a shameful disregard of the wounds inflicted upon your country's reputation—and a total want of feeling for the unparalleled distresses and sufferings of the unfortunate and unprotected citizens on the frontiers. Your patriotism, your honour and your philanthropy disdain such charges. Will you hesitate then to obey the dictates of your feelings? Show by your acts that you are determined to co-operate with your brave countrymen, not only in obliterating the foul stain which your country has received, but in effectually reducing and subduing the British forces and the ferocious and blood-thirsty savages.

Form Volunteer Companies and make a tender of services to the President of the U. States. You have already been informed that he is authorised, by an act Congress passed 6th February, 1812, to accept the service of 50,000 volunteers. Under that act let you tender be made. When you are enrolled and your services accepted you will be organized by the President, and when called on duty, your services will be required for twelve months. You will be armed and equipped and paid by the General Government. Those of you who may prefer a more permanent establishment, will render yourselves still more useful by filling the ranks of the regular army. It is unnecessary to detail the inducements offered to those patriots who may have a wish to join that description of force. Suffice it to say, that when they are weighed by him who may be inclined to prefer the regular service, they will be sufficiently powerful to determine him to enter it without hesitation. To be a soldier in time of war is an honor which will not fade when his services are at an end. Those who fall in defence of their country, will live in the remembrance of a grateful posterity—and those who live to see peace restored upon terms compatible with the honor and dignity of their country, will not only be hailed as its brave defenders, but will thenceforward enjoy the blissful consciousness of having performed their duty in the arduous conflict, the termination of which had reflected lustre upon the American character. They will not only themselves, enjoy the well earned fruits of their services, but their descendants will inherit the glory and renown which their bravery and patriotism had guaranteed to them.

Conscious, Fellow-Citizens, that you are fully impressed with a due sense of the justness of the cause in which our country is at present engaged, and of the propriety of placing yourselves in an attitude to afford it prompt and effective support, entertain the pleasing hope that in prosecuting the war, you will not furnish grounds to be charged with delinquency by the citizens of our sister states.

I have the honor to be, &c. &c.

WILLIAM HAWKINS.

THE COALITION.

On Tuesday evening the 15th ult. assembled in this city, at Mr. Kent's tavern in Broad street, a grand caucus, or convention of FEDERAL DELEGATES from about TWELVE states in the Union, together with a few apostate republicans.

From our own observation, and from information derived from different individuals, we believe the following list of names will comprise nearly the whole of the persons present:

Massachusetts—TIMOTHY PICKERING, Garrison G. Otis, Mr. Thorndike, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Biglow, and Mr. Quincy.

Connecticut—Mr. Daggett, Mr. Dana, and Mr. Duryell.

Rhode-Island—Mr. Channing, Mr. Ives, and Ben Haggard.

Vermont—Mr. Noyce, and Mr. Lankton.

New-York—Barnet Gardener, Ogden Hoffman, Mr. Coleman, Mr. King, Mr. Radcliffe, & Mr. Woolcott.

New-Jersey—Mr. Stockton, Mr. Boudinot, and Mr. Ogden.

Pennsylvania—Mr. Hopkinson, Mr. Binnion, Mr. Wallace, Mr. Merrifield, and Mr. Wharton.

Maryland—GOOLGE HARPER, and Mr. Hanson.

Virginia—Geo. Hay, Mr. Taylor, and John Randolph.

North-Carolina—Mr. Cooper.

Mr. Butler attended from some one of the states, and from South-Carolina a letter was received from C. C. Pinckney, declining attendance—but stating his willingness to concur in the nomination of a suitable federal candidate.

It is singular, how clamor and perseverance impose upon the community!

Who would believe that the federalists of 1812, are the same party of federalists that existed when Mr. Jefferson came into office as President? Who would believe it, if the contests of the Federal Gazettes were the only criterions we had to judge by?

In 1801, the first caucus set up was concerning the abolition of internal taxes, and the abrogation of the midnight judiciary system. Destruction was to overwhelm the republic if those things were done away. They were annihilated, and no destruction ensued:

About the same time a French fleet appeared in the American seas. Robert Goodloe Harper immediately raised a riotous uproar in the Anti-Democrat at Baltimore, that the French were about to invade the country. Yet no invasion took place.

When Louisiana was purchased, that was to ruin the country. But the nation is yet ruined.

Next Mr. Jefferson's red breeches were to burn up the country. And we have seen nothing to justify the British, whom they had before condemned.

The British under a pretended rule of '56, swept the ocean in 1805-6 of our ships and merchandise. The federalists were up in arms and insisted on vengeance.

The republicans proceeded to retaliate; and the federalists directly chopped about, and began to justify the British, whom they had before condemned.

Thus changing, and thus wheeling from right to left, for ten years, the federalists have started afresh as the friends of peace! They are the only friends of peace, if you believe them. Friends of peace, and friends of commerce! You hear not one word from them concerning the rights of commerce, or the rights of the nation.

If in charity, we believe these brawlers, what are we to think of them?

They are for peace, at all events. Therefore, they are the friends of submission.

They are for free commerce, without war. But, without war, there is no free commerce. What is the conclusion? Why, as the federalists are not for war, and are for commerce at any rate, they are in favour of accepting commerce by submission to British outrages.

Look at their arguments which way you will, the federalists acknowledge themselves the friends of submission to British power. And notwithstanding we hear nothing from them but peace and commerce, they are notoriously the same old party that opposed the republicans in the year 1801. All their former predictions have been falsified—Then who will believe them?

MR. THOMAS W. MOORE, the late British consul from Philadelphia, attended in the city during the caucus and was closeted much of the time with certain members of said caucus in a certain house in Pine street.

It is said, that NO MONEY IS TO BE SPARED to carry the object of the caucus into effect.

* The Editor of the Federal Republican, and author of the riots at Baltimore.

GRAND CAUCUS.

We are authorised to state to the public, that a grand caucus, consisting of 70 federal delegates from the different states, held on Thursday last, at Kent's tavern, in Broad street, the hon. DE WITT CLINTON was (with but two exceptions) unanimously nominated as the federal candidate for the presidency, and Jared Ingersoll for the vice-presidency of the United States, at the ensuing election.

And we are further authorised to state, that the conditions of the bargain offered by the federal and embraced by the Clintonian party, were in substance as follows:

1. That in the event of the election of their candidate, a cessation of hostilities against the British should take place within 24 hours thereafter.

2. That the Clintonian and federal parties should participate equally in the offices of state.

3. That the seat of government should be removed to New-York or Philadelphia.

N. Y. Pub. Adver.

on Groton shore, [Connecticut] we are informed, have been countermanded; the President giving as his reason, that if, as the Governor and Council assert, there is no danger of the state being invaded, there can be no need of spending money on the fortifications.—Bost. P.

For the Kentucky Gazette.

JOHN POPE, ESQ.

This gentleman was a favourite son of Kentucky. Born in her wilds and cherished with her milk, he arose to manhood under the most flattering circumstances. Having received an education better than was customary in early days, and possessing qualities which attracted the admiration of his acquaintance, he was marked as a youth who was one day to perform a conspicuous part on the political theatre of his country. There were many favourites—but none stood higher in the public estimation than Mr. Pope.

The loss of NICHOLAS and BRECKINRIDGE was deeply felt—the respect paid to their memories, testify their worth—Kentucky felt as she ought—like a family, bereaved of its venerable head, she turned her eyes upon her numerous sons—John Pope stood amongst the foremost. Early acquainted with the political sentiments of the people, it was presumed he would respect them—he won their confidence, and was elected a member of Congress.

The conflicting opinions and interests of the different states were here to be represented. He well knew faithful discharge of his duties, would elevate him in the affection of his fellow-citizens; and that a dereliction from them, would forfeit their future confidence. His path was clear—He will see the probability that the immense and increasing revenue since the war commenced on our part, will render any new taxes unnecessary—and they will consider all the calculations and declarations of federalists on the subject, as only electioneering stories—designed to scare them out of their senses and cheat them out of their votes.

Trent. T. Amer.

LOANS.

How can Federalists bear to hear the name of loans, much less to mention it themselves, when they cannot have forgotten that they borrowed large sums of money, and gave eight per cent for a part of it, notwithstanding they were drawing all they could from the people by their system of internal taxation!—Federalists laid on—they know that for eleven years Republicans have done without internal taxation—They will see the probability that the immense and increasing revenue since the war commenced on our part, will render any new taxes unnecessary—and they will consider all the calculations and declarations of federalists on the subject, as only electioneering stories—designed to scare them out of their senses and cheat them out of their votes.

Doctors will differ. Governor Griswold and his council say, there is no danger of invasion at New London. The directors of the two banks in that city, have removed their species back into the country. Can they tell for what? As they may be found to differ from his excellency, a third party might be called to decide. And the president of the United States has decided, and so has congress, that danger of invasion does, and shall exist, unless we can carry on war without such danger. But bank directors generally calculate on more certain and correct principles than speculative politicians, and they have determined that their cash is in jeopardy, the opinion of his excellency and his council to the contrary notwithstanding.

with him relative to the course he is to pursue in his administration—on a former occasion made a similar contract with Col. Burr, and gave him their support, although the voice of the Nation had previously declared in favor of Mr. Jefferson. Do they remember, that on the failure of their project to bring in Burr, they expressed a determination not to acquiesce in the election of Jefferson, but that Chief Justice Marshall should perform the duties of the executive until the next election? Can republicans remember these circumstances and vote for Mr. Clinton?

Every one acquainted with the course of reading of the religious Squire "Stink," must believe that the elegant lines published by him, must have been pointed out by his employer. The following, although from a vulgar author, appear to fit the Squire at least as well as those introduced by him, do the Editor of the Gazette.

"I make no doubt, but you have seen
The playful boys, upon the green,
Choose out two dogs, and for their fun,
Encourage, clap, and set them on.
Furious they growl, they snap, not bite—
So war the quills when DUNCES write."

The Squire has not informed us what is to become of the poor hopeless sinner, as he is not to be admitted into hell. He can point to chapter and verse where provision is made for him.

ARTICLES FROM THE TRUE AMERICAN.
SPIRIT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Meetings of citizens and conventions of delegates are daily held in different parts of this state, at which the most determined spirit is manifested to aid the government in its war with our ancient and implacable foe, and to support it against any efforts of treason or rebellion.

TRIUMPH OF VERMONT.

The Vermont Republican of Monday gives us the result of the election of 182 towns—all that have been heard from. These towns give a Republican majority of 3272!! The Representatives elected, so far as ascertained at that date, were 112 Republicans, and only 58 Federalists!

It is now reduced to a certainty that the Republicans of North Carolina, have, as usual, succeeded in their election—notwithstanding federal abuse, intrigue and exertion!—This was the only southern state on which federalists pretended to calculate—and here they are disappointed.

PATRIOTISM OF CONNECTICUT.

Subscription papers, pledging the signers to the support of the general government, are circulating in all the towns of Connecticut, and succeeds beyond the most sanguine expectations. The friends of government are found to be so numerous, as to put at defiance the threats of its enemies of revolting from the union, respecting the laws, &c.

OUR REVENUE.

A southern paper estimates the revenue from imports this year at twenty millions of dollars. It will probably far exceed that sum. But admitting it does not, it will defray all the expenses of government, civil and military.

BRITISH PREPARATIONS.

COPY of a letter from a gentleman in Montreal to a gentleman in this village, dated Sept. 18, 1812.

"Montreal, and indeed the whole province as far as I have seen, presents truly a martial appearance. The inhabitants here from the age of sixteen are all soldiers. Whole companies of militia have volunteered and saved the necessity of drafting. In some companies, they were not quite so patriotic. Yesterday a beautiful company of English soldiers from the West Indies arrived in town, to the number of two or three hundred, and more are daily expected. It is hardly possible to believe that any soldiers in the world can go through the manual exercises with more regularity, and exactness than the British soldiers we have here."

A gentleman directly from Montreal, confirms the representation in the above letter; and adds, that he learned when there, that 14 transports had arrived at Quebec, from the West Indies, bringing three thousand troops, two thousand of which were blacks; and five thousand more were daily expected. The same gentleman informs us, that he was on his return at the Isle Noix, which commands the entrance into Canada by water—that the British had strongly fortified that place—that they had 1500 troops on that Island—that the enemy had effectually obstructed the passage of the river on both sides of the island except a channel for sloops, across which they have thrown heavy chain—and that they had drawn from the St. Lawrence into the Joral river, to be used in Lake Champlain, 4 gun boats, and were drawing the fifth, when he was there.

FALMOUTH, Aug. 18.

WINDSOR, Aug. 20. The destination of the 2d battalion 89th, has been altered, and they are now to proceed to North America. The Prince's Regiment, the 10th is to have a man in it under five feet seven. All under this standing are to be discharged.

From the Western Intelligencer.

The council with the Indian tribes on the western frontier having been concluded, the commissioners deem it their duty to give to their fellow citizens a concise view of the proceedings and result.

The Delaware and Shawnee tribes together with several of the Kickapoos, Seneca, Mingoe, and Wyandots attended.

The commissioners according to their instructions have endeavoured to ascertain their views and dispositions, they informed them of the inevitable consequence of any act of hostility on their party. That the president stood in no need of their assistance in the war with Great Britain, and that for their own sakes he desired them to remain quiet and pursue their usual occupations.—

The chiefs in behalf of the tribes that attended have made professions of friendship and attachment to the U. S. have in the most positive manner declared their determination to adhere to and observe the existing treaties, to remain neutral in the present war, and to reject the overtures of the British (which they state to have been repeated and pressing,) to engage in it—they have engaged by the most solemn promise to restrain their young men from hostile acts against us, and have agreed to be responsible for their conduct, and to prohibit hostile Indians from going to their towns, and to give notice of any premeditated hostility—the commissioners presume not to judge of the sincerity of professions, especially of the professions made by savages it being the alone prerogative of the Supreme Ruler of the Universe to judge the heart, but considering that their conduct will accord with their obvious interest, and having taken every possible means to ascertain their views, have from the result of their inquiries formed the opinion that their professions are sincere, and accordingly in virtue of their instructions given the tribes who attended, assurance that no act of hostility will be committed against them by any citizen of the United States while they observe a peaceable conduct.

The commissioners were of opinion that the non-attendance at the council by any tribe after having been invited, was such evidence of an hostile disposition, as to justify the suspension of the delivery of their annuities or presents—No goods, either as annuities or present, have been delivered except to the tribes who attended, nor has ammunition or other implements of war been given in any case.

GALLANT ACTION—AT SEA.

COPY of a letter from William B. Dobson captain of the Teazer, addressed to her late commander, Captain Wooster of this city.

SIR—I am sorry to inform you, that on the 10th instant off Cape Sable, I fell in with two English ships in company. One mounting twenty guns, the other sixteen. We engaged them both and came to close quarters, with grape and musket, when the smallest ship struck. But the largest ship, and raking us, shot away three of our four shrouds and obliged us to haul off to repair. They unfortunately killed one man and wounded four—two we suppose mortally. We continued chase hoping afterwards to separate them, but found it impossible, and therefore gave up the chase.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM B. DOBSON.

The schooner James Madison, Capt. Brooks, (a Savannah revenue cutter) of 10 guns and 75 men, has been captured by the British frigate Barbadoes. The James Madison run into a fleet convoyed by the Barbadoes in the night, cut two of them out, and ordered them for the United States; one was said to have 300 hogsheads of sugar on board. Next night she dashed into the convoy again, and ranged up along side of the Barbadoes, (taking her to be a large merchantman,) fired several guns, and attempted to board her before she discovered the mistake; when she was taken. She was manned and sent with the fleet to England.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—Arrived at Newburyport, on Wednesday, the privateer brig Decatur, Nicholas, from a cruise of 47 days, having captured 11 sail of English vessels, two of which, (the Duke of Savoy and Elizabeth) arrived several days since. August 23, she took brig Pomona, of two guns, from Aberdeen for the river St. Lawrence, and after disarming her, sent her to Halifax, as a cartel, with prisoners, 26th, took brig Devonshire, from Falmouth for St. John's, loaded with green fish, and sent her to France, to sell her cargo; brig Concord from do. for do. in ballast, and burnt her; brig Hope, from do. for do. sent her to Halifax, as a cartel. 30th, took barque William & Charlotte, from Quebec for Portsmouth, E. with 500 tons timber, deals, &c., mounting 46 pounds, &c. and ordered her for the first port.—September 1, in about long 30, fell in with the St. Thomas fleet, and captured the ship Diana, 370 tons, loaded with sugar and rum, bound to Liverpool, mounting ten 9 and 12 pounders, &c.; and brig Fame of 180 tons, for Dublin, loaded with rum and sugar, 2 guns—ordered both for the first port in the United States.—16th, took ship commerce, (Watts, late master) from Demarara for Glasgow, 390 tons, and fourteen 9 and 6 pounders; loaded with sugar, rum, cotton, and coffee, and ordered her for the first port. Had an engagement of about 25 minutes with this ship, in which her captain was killed by a cannon ball, 3 men killed and two badly wounded; the masts, hull, &c. considerably injured, and some of the guns dismounted. When she was first fallen in with, Capt. Watts requested the Decatur to send her boat on board, which was complied with, but the Lt. who went in her was detained, and put into the hold of the vessel, and orders given to fire into the boat, but Capt. Nicholas was too quick for him.]

The Decatur engaged a brig, belonging to the above fleet, under the guns of the Commodore's ship, but thinking the hazard too great to attempt boarding her, let her pass. She has made 120 prisoners, 60 of whom were sent to Halifax, and the remainder are on board; has only 30 of her crew on board, 81 being absent in prizes, and arrived previous to her. She has not lost a man during the cruise; has been to the long, of about 20, lat. 46°; thence run down the Western Islands, over the Grand Bank by Halifax and home. Has been chased by several men of war, but escaped from them. Her sailing greatly exceeds the expectations of her owners.—She came into Newburyport in a very handsome style, with about 50 flags, of various kinds displayed on board of her.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—A curious fact.—A British brig has brought an American privateer into Portland, (Me.) The privateersmen after capturing the brig, hoisted their vessel, which was a large boat, on board the brig, and proceeded into port.

New Bedford, Oct. 5.—Arrived here this day, ship Whampoa, Capt. Waterman, of New York, from Lisbon, which she left 1st Sept. A gentleman passenger informs that Lord Wellington had entered Madrid, where he took 3000 prisoners, and stores for 20,000 men.—That he had left a garrison in Madrid, and gone towards the north in pursuit of the French, and that the French had raised the siege of Cadiz. A Portuguese paper brought by this vessel, is said to contain the particulars of Lord Wellington's continued success. Flour S 22 at Lisbon."

LEXINGTON:
TUESDAY...OCTOBER 27, 1812.

The last mails brought us but little news, either of a foreign or domestic nature. We have therefore selected from eastern papers, some articles, calculated to convey to our readers an idea of the politics of many of our sister states.

In consequence of the unexpected opposition made in this district to the election of electors, friendly to Mr. Madison and Mr. Gerry, committees have been appointed in this and other counties, to select a ticket of four persons to be voted for, and whom it is understood, they will recommend to the suffrages of the people. They were to meet yesterday at Paris; but we have not as yet heard the result of their deliberations. All the republican candidates, we further understand, have expressed their willingness to abide by the decision of this meeting: being convinced, that it is the only way to preserve the integrity of the republican party, and to defeat the machinations and intrigues of our opponents, who it is said have held many secret caucuses in this and other places to devise plans by which they may rise into power, by our divisions.

A dinner was given to Mr. Pope on Saturday last, at Mr. Maxwell's spring, by his friends and the federalists of the neighborhood, as a testimony of their approbation of his public conduct. We understand that he delivered a very long speech in justification of himself, which we presume is but a copy of one promised in a late "Statesman."

GOOD SAYING.

A few days since, one of our driftwood politicians, read to a large company, the address of the New-York committee, recommending De Witt Clinton as our next President—when he came to that part of it, which recommended De Witt, because he was a relation by blood, to our late worthy Vice-President—Oh! Damn his blood!—said an old gentleman who was by—it is not as good as a hog—far of that, my wife could make a good puddin'.

The house of representatives of Tennessee have passed resolutions, and sent them to the Senate for their concurrence, stating that many horrid and inhuman murders had been committed by the Creek Indians on the people of that state, which were then unredressed, and no satisfaction, was either promised or expected from that confederacy, owing to the false representations of the Indian agent, Hawkins. They direct the governor of that state, to order into service on the frontier 10,000 militia to send a messenger to the Creek nation, demanding the delivery of the murderers, and in case of refusal within 20 days, that he shall order out a force sufficient to exterminate the Creek nation.

The recruiting service has been so successful in the Carolinas, that major Gen. Pinkney has discharged the militia, stationed on the coast of N. Carolina.

The federalists have carried the general election in Maryland, in consequence of division among the republicans.—In Philadelphia, where federal influence has predominated for some years, the republican party has been successful.

The city of London was illuminated for three successive nights in honour of Wellington's victory—during the last night, the crowd took the horses out of Lord Wellesley's carriage to the Rapid, and drove it through the city.

OMINOUS.

When the American colours were hauled down at Detroit, through the treachery of Hull, in hoisting the British colours in their place, the rope broke and they fell to the ground. A second and a third time they were hoisted, but still the rope gave way. A British officer, who was standing by, exclaimed, "By G-d we shall hold this place but a short time." We do not profess to prophesy, or to believe in signs and wonders; but will venture to assert that the exclamation of the officer will prove true.

A HINT.

Those who exhibit the beacon of discontent to the enemy, and exult in the capture of Hull, would do well to fly to their ally, now at Detroit.—The British governor ensures them protection; and we would rather meet them as open enemies, than as treacherous friends.

The distinction which existed between White and Tarr in '76, is well remembered.

NORTH-WESTERN ARMY.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

"Camp at Defense, Oct. 11, 1812.

"The left wing of the army is still here. Within a few days past, the building of blockhouses &c. have progressed rapidly, and will be completed in a short time. The regiments of colonels Jennings, Barbee and Poague, remain at St. Mary's and at the block-houses lately built about midway between that point and this. These buildings are intended as depots of provisions, and to facilitate their transportation to the army. We cannot ascertain the time of our departure; as it depends entirely upon the accumulation of supplies here: but we expect it will happen about the 25th. It is supposed we shall meet the enemy at the Rapids. Within a few days we have discovered, that a body of Indians passed towards that place from the Wabash and other quarters. We have just heard of a large body being at Fort Wayne a few days ago, and that two men belonging to the garrison were killed.

" From the want of mounted men, our reconnoitering parties cannot take as wide a range, or explore the country as they used to do; and in consequence parties of Indians have passed us without being intercepted.

" Col. R. M. Johnson's corps of mounted volunteers have left us—their term of service had expired—it was inconvenient for the men composing it to remain longer from their families—and there was little prospect of their being soon engaged in active service. Whilst they remained, they displayed a zeal and alacrity honorable to themselves and to their commander—always ready to act, and prompt when acts were required of them. The conduct of some Ohio mounted men, by contrast, sets them off to great advantage. More of this, hereafter.

" In our march, and in the expeditions to the Indian towns, we did not receive the usual supply of provisions—with Harrison, there came plenty. Notwithstanding all obstacles, we expect to conquer Canada this winter; for we have now no doubt of supplies of every kind. If the clothes arrive at the Rapids, we shall not suffer materially.

" Gen. Harrison has said correctly of General Winchester—he is humane—and a good officer—he discourses by his actions, the possession of talents and experience. All did not expect this, and some officers assumed too much in consequence. In an army, but one can rule. Harrison, with a look, can awe, and convince, or persuade, where some would be refractory. He attends personally to every department—makes all do their duty—and appears better fitted to command than any other man whom I ever saw.—All are afraid and unwilling to meet with his censure."

ANOTHER EXTRACT.

" Colonel Johnson's corps was more conspicuous when contrasted with that from Ohio. I before noticed the retrograde movements of the party that accompanied the army to Fort Wayne from St. Mary's—at a time too when there was a prospect of being usefully employed; for the Indians can be surprised only by mounted men. On this occasion Gov. Harrison addressed them in vain—they were determined to go home, notwithstanding the pledge given at St. Mary's to serve a certain number of days. During the expostulation the Governor observed, that he had discovered it was through the influence and advice of certain characters among them, who had been designated as officers, that they had been induced to fly from the service of their country, and to desert their posts at a critical moment. He also remarked, that those men aspired to offices—were in fact candidates for the Assembly and for Congress—Let no such men as these be trusted—rely upon it (said he) they will sell you, if ever it should be in their power.

" One of the gentlemen became very wrathful on the occasion, and threatened a dreadful vengeance on him who had so traduced the character of himself and his fellow-citizens—he wished to know the person who had given the information. My authority (said governor H.) is good, and cannot be doubted—and YOU are one of the men to whom I have alluded.—The fellow was silenced, and meekly shrunk away.

" It was not expected we should again witness anything of the kind on this campaign—but unfortunately very near the like has since occurred. Soon after the enemy arrived at this place, another body of Ohio men came up, under Gen. Tupper, amounting to nearly 1000. They were ordered by the commander in chief to proceed immediately to the Rapids. Gen. Harrison left us, and the Ohio men remained encamped several days—and it seemed with every now and then came some fresh difficulty. When all arrangements were seemingly made, it was discovered, that while hesitating they had consumed their provisions—fresh rations for eight days were issued, and their ammunition had been spoiled—one objection after another, until I believe Gen. Winchester actually ordered them off. We know not where they have gone—none believe they intended to go to the Rapids, for they took the back track towards St. Mary's. I have a high opinion of Gen. Tupper, and am in hopes he will be able to obey the orders from the commander—but I fear there were some candidates for congress among his troops. The army will be detained at the Rapids, and the Ohio men will be sent to the frontiers of the United States, and to other points of the country, for which they are well qualified.

the different Indian chiefs, who accompanied him to visit the President.

We are informed, the Indians are much pleased with their treatment, and generally disposed to embark in the war with, or without permission of the General Government; the Osages particularly, and the Sioux, are highly exasperated against the Indians who destroyed Mr. Boivin's property on the Prairie De Chien. The Sac Foxes and Ioways are also much displeased. We have reason to believe Gen. Clark will not oppose their wishes—indeed sound policy in the present critical posture requires it. Their young men cannot be restrained, and should an opposition be persisted in, they will join the enemy. Courier.
